Description

The humanities and social sciences are those academic disciplines that study humanity and its interaction with its environment including but not limited to literature, language, culture, economic and political activities, artifacts and how the surrounding issues are communicated and perceived by the users. The Department of HSS at IIT Patna is motivated to foster interdisciplinary study in upcoming areas of research. The department with its 'glocal' vision tries to engage and operate between the knowledge system available locally as well as globally. Academic scholarship needs to be properly articulated for greater acknowledgement and the most significant step towards this is to be able to formulate as well as present ideas and findings in a social and cohesive manner. This course will be useful to the academicians as well as professionals who are into research writing and publication.

Objectives and Outcomes
